

Scaling up the early childhood workforce to support children birth to age 3: Lessons from Peru and Mozambique

Early Childhood Workforce Initiative – Webinars – 14 June, 2017

Nami Kawakyu

Kawakyu Consulting

Nami Kawakyu is an experienced global health professional having worked in the U.S., Africa, and Asia designing and managing public health programs and building monitoring and evaluation systems. Her programmatic and research interests include health systems strengthening, health workforce development, and results-based management. Ms. Kawakyu holds a Master of Public Health in Global Health from the University of Washington, a Bachelor of Science in Nursing from the University of Rochester, and a Bachelor of Arts in Anthropology and Economics from Brandeis University. She is fluent in English, Japanese, and Swahili.